Year 4

Learning Journey: A day in the Life of...

Our Learning Journey

We've delved deeper into the personal history of Nelson Mandela in reading through the wonderfully illustrated Grandad Mandela. We're also beginning our new text, Tar Beach, which has involved a lot of inferring and predicting to unlock feelings and thoughts of its characters. It's great to try and get into the characters' shoes.

By focussing on place value this week, we've exercised our mental skills in adding and subtracting thousands, hundreds and tens to allow us to begin to round to the nearest tens, hundreds and thousands. See if you can have your children round up or round down prices to the nearest 10 pence or pound.

Home Learning

Thank you for the heritage boxes, the children have shared and learned a lot about one another. Please look at this week's task. If you didn't bring in your learning log, your child will still have the task in their bag.

Please keep up with the Times Tables Rock Stars. The children are improving their recall of their times tables. Keep on strumming.
